MCALESTER'S PARDONS STAND

COURT HOLDS THAT LIEUT.-GOV. HAD FULL AUTHORITY IN ABSENCE OF GOVERNOR

Oklahoma City, Aug. 15.—When Governor Cruse crossed the boundary of his official jurisdiction on the night of July 31, enroute to Kansas City, he left behind him the duties and prerogatives of the office of the chief executive of the state, which immediately devolved on the lieutenant governor, and all acts performed by Acting Governor J. J. McAlester in granting a pardon to George Crump Jr., are valid and binding in every respect.

So held the criminal court of appeals in a verbal opinion announced by Judge Thomas H. Doyle late Thursday afternoon in the habeas corpus proceedings instituted to secure the liberty of Crump by virtue of the pardon.

Following the announcement of the decision Crump, who had been brought before the court in the custody of a deputy warden of the penitentiary, walked from the courtroom a free man after serving thirteen months of a seven-year sentence for conviction of fraud in connection with the sale of Indian lands in Pottawatomie county. Crump's first thought was of his aged mother at Muskogee, and after a few minutes spent in receiving congratulations from his friends in the courtroom he lost no time in getting to a telegraph office to notify her of his freedom and that he would soon return to her with the stain of conviction removed, his pardon being absolute and complete. His father was in court with him.

The decision, which establishes the authority of Lieutenant Governor McAlester to perform the duties of governor in the absence of Governor Cruse occasioned by his visit to Kansas City, is expected to settle completely the controversy over executive authority that has been going on between Governor Cruse and Lieutenant Governor McAlester and likewise establish the validity of the signing of the school book contracts and bonds, which, it is charged, is responsible for the governor's opposition to all acts performed by McAlester.

Some of the questions, however, which were raised in connection with the validity of the pardons are not applicable to the school book contracts, but, nevertheless, the authority of McAlester to act as governor on the night of August 2, the time of the signing of the contracts and the granting of the pardons is established beyond question by the decision of the criminal court of appeals.

The only material difference in the two cases, according to friends of the governor and opponent of the book adoptions, is the fact that the question of the validity of the adoptions was brought before the supreme court on an appeal from Judge Carney's injunction, prior to the signing of the contracts and bonds and that the case will have to remain there until finally adjudicated.

FOR PURE FOOD AND HONEST WEIGHT

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 15.—A score or more of laws passed by the last legislature and put into effect today are expected to put Michigan at the top of the list of "pure food" states.

Some of the laws designed to prevent food adulteration and to insure honest weights and measures are decidedly advanced in their character. All food inspectors throughout the state have been made inspectors of weights and measures also. Every commission merchant dealing in farm products is to be licensed by the state. Deceptive labels and the misbranding of food packages as to weight are prohibited.

In future all butter sold in Michigan must be 80 per cent fat, cream 18 per cent fat and cheese 30 per cent fat. Sausage must contain not more than 2 per cent of cereals and 3 per cent of water. No more Bob-bean less than four weeks old is to be sold. Other of the new laws provide strict sanitary regulations for creameries, canneries and other places where food stuffs are prepared or sold.

LYNCING AT PAULS VALLEY

MOB TAKES NEGROES FROM OF- FICERS AND MAKES SHORT WORK OF THEM.

Pauls Valley, Okla., Aug. 15.—Two negroes while being brought to Pauls Valley from Ardmore for preliminary hearings on charges of man-slaughter were taken from Deputy Sheriff Will Buckholts, at the edge of town early Thursday morning and lynched by a mob of 200 masked men, most of whom are believed to have been farmers. The negroes after being taken from the officer were turned loose in the road and shot to death.

The two lynched men were Sanders Franklin, charged with killing A. G. Airington, a white man, at a negro picnic on July 26 and Henry Ralston, charged with shooting David Vanness, a boy who went to the farm of the negro to purchase watermelons. Vanness was shot on July 17 and died on Tuesday, a week ago.

For three hours Deputy Buckholts eluded the mob which met him at the edge of town, but finally he was found and overpowered the mob taking the negroes and killing them. One of them, Ralston, did not die until 9:30 o'clock, although the lynching took place about 5 o'clock, and he was left in the road by the mob which believed him dead.

"I was bringing the negroes from Ardmore to Pauls Valley for preliminary hearing," said Deputy Buckholts, speaking of the event, "and had gotten off the train at Wynnewood where an automobile was waiting to take us to Pauls Valley. Just as we reached the bridge over the Washita river at the edge of town about 2:30 o'clock, I saw the mob."

"Getting out of the car, I hurried through a cornfield with my prisoners, who, in fear of death, were willing enough to go along at a rapid pace and we dodged the masked men for about three hours covering several fields. Finally we were sighted about 5:30 o'clock and the men overpowered me by force taking the negroes. I did not attempt to shoot as that would have been useless, considering the size of the mob and the fact that all were armed with rifles and shotguns.

"The negroes were taken back to the public highway close to the bridge and the shackles binding their feet together were unlocked. They were turned loose and promiscuous shooting followed, to which I was a witness.

"One of the negroes, Ralston, was shot and fell immediately, the other, Franklin, ran for about one hundred yards, receiving wounds but keeping on his feet. He was caught and brought back beside the other and fell dead within two feet of his companion's body. Believing them both dead the mob departed quietly.

"I stayed near the bodies and soon discovered that one of them was unconscious, but breathing. He lived until after 9 o'clock. About 9:30 o'clock I had the bodies moved into Pauls Valley for the inquest.

Memorial to the Pilgrim Fathers.

London, Aug. 15.—Ambassador

Page, together with many prominent members of the American colony in London, journeyed to Southampton today to attend the dedication of an imposing memorial erected there to the Pilgrim Fathers. The memorial stands on the quay where the Pilgrims gathered in prayer on that memorable day in 1620 before embarking on the Mayflower to begin their journey to the great, unknown land across the sea. A feature of the memorial is a tablet inscribed in memory of John Alden, the youngest of the Pilgrims and who was given immortal fame by the poet Longfellow. The cost of the tablet was contributed by the Alden kindred of America, composed of descendants of John and Priscilla Alden.

Any erroneous reflection on the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of The News will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

Obituaries and Resolutions of Respect of less than 100 words will be published free. For all matter in excess of 100 words a charge of one cent per word will be made. Count your words and remit with manuscript.

The criminal court of appeals has decided that McAlester was really and truly governor during the absence of Cruce from the state. Quite a compliment to his vanity and he will doubtless call it a "vindication." If he runs for governor next year, however, the people will give it a different name.

Easterners sometimes wonder at all the fuss made in the South over the first bale of cotton. Nothing strange about it. Just like the first nugget taken from a gold mine; sign of plenty more where it came from.

The paste and pencil editor of the Fort Worth Record should rub the dust off of his glasses. Two or three times lately he has taken clippings from the Ada News and credited them to the Ida News. So far as we are aware no such paper exists.

The Madill Times is boasting George Henshaw of Madill, a member of the corporation commission, for governor. He might prove a very acceptable candidate—sometime in the future—but he is making good where he is and perhaps it will be best for him to stick to his job for another four years.

Now that the retail merchants have organized the deadbeat who makes practice of transferring his trade to another firm as soon as he is found out by the one he has been victimizing will find hardsledding, for all members of the organization will have his number and will choke him off. It will be cash for him. Not only that but if he made a practice of beating his bills before coming to Ada

ANOTHER CLUE TO ## DALLAS MURDER

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 15.—The proverbial silence of the Sphinx is no more impressive than that maintained at police headquarters concerning the investigation now being made in the Brown murder case which, apparently, has baffled the detectives. However, it was learned last evening from a reliable authority, a high official, that an arrest is probable within the next Forty-eight hours. It is safe to predict that even if this arrest is made the fact will not be given out by the authorities, although it is practically certain to become known through other channels.

The officers have carefully made a plan by which it is expected to effect an arrest. The detectives have been working night and day for some clew by which the motive for the killing can be established. The clew on which the plan has been laid, however, does not suggest the motive.

The full details of the facts which it is hoped will lead to an early arrest were not divulged. The person volunteering the information said that he had been disappointed so many times by the result of investigations that he is almost afraid to place absolute dependence upon the present prospects. He expresses the belief, however, that the detectives have a "red-hot" clew and that if it possesses any merit the full extent will be known by them soon.

Two persons have been found who gave the officers the foundation for the clew. Sheriff Ben F. Brandenburg was absent from his office Wednesday and a part of yesterday morning and this fact led to the belief in the minds of many that he had made another out-of-town trip in the Brown case. Last night the sheriff said he had merely gone to his brother's farm, a few miles from the city, for a day's vacation. He asserted that there are no new developments that he knows of in connection with the murder mystery. When such develops, he says, they will be given to the press as soon as is deemed advisable.

GROWTH IN EXPORTS OF MANUFACTURES, 1903-13

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—That manufactures are now the chief feature in the growth of the export trade of the United States is shown by some figures just compiled by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce. They show, for the 10 years ending with 1913, an increase of 153 per cent in the export of manufactures (exclusive of foodstuffs) and of 34 per cent in all other articles exported.

Such bids must be competitive, and each competitive bid shall be sealed and one copy of each bid shall be filed with the Clerk of the Board on or before the date above given. Each bidder shall accompany his bid with a sworn statement, in writing, that the bidder has not directly, nor indirectly, entered into any agreement, express or implied, with any other bidder or bidders, having for its object the control of the price and amount of such bids, or limiting of the bids or bidders, parcelling or farming out to any bidder or bidders or other persons, any part of the contract or any part of the subject matter of the bid, or the parts thereof. No bidder shall divulge said sealed bid to any person whatever except those having a partnership or other financial interest with him in said bid until after the said sealed bids are opened. The violation of any of the foregoing provisions on the part of the bidder shall make void any contract made by him with said City based upon such bid. The awarding of a contract upon a successful bid shall give the bidder no right of action or claim against the City upon such contract until the same shall have been reduced to writing and duly signed by the contracting parties.

All bids filed with the Clerk of the Board shall be opened in the presence of the Board of Commissioners, two days before any contract shall be entered into, based upon said bid. Pending advertisement for bids, the plans, specifications and profiles shall remain on file in the office of the Clerk of the Board, subject to the inspection of any person.

The Board of Commissioners reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

cent of the exports in 1913 against 24 per cent in 1900, 16 per cent in 1890, and 11 per cent in 1880. Manufactures for further use in manufacturing formed 16.8 per cent of the exports of 1913 against 11.2 per cent in 1900, 5.5 per cent in 1890, and 3.5 per cent in 1880.

On the import side manufactures and manufacturers' materials also made their highest record in 1913. The imports of crude materials for use in manufacturing were valued at $63 million dollars in 1913 against $56 million in 1910, $27 million in 1900, $17 million in 1890, and $12 million in 1880. Of manufactures for further use in manufacturing the imports were $49 million dollars in 1913 against $28 million in 1910, $18 million in 1900, $11 million in 1890, and $11 million in 1880. Finished manufactures imported amounted to $41 million dollars in 1913 against $36 million in 1910, $20 million in 1900, $21 million in 1890, and $19 million in 1880. Finished manufactures, manufacturers for further use in manufacturing, and manufacturers' crude materials show, in each case, larger import totals for 1913 than in any preceding year.

SEVERE FIRE LOSS SUFFERED AT BLANCHARD

Blanchard, Okla., Aug. 15.—An entire block of wooden buildings occupied by business houses was destroyed by fire here Thursday morning, the blaze starting at 5 o'clock in a restaurant owned by S. W. Moore. Fanned by a south wind the flames spread north and could not be checked until the entire block was destroyed. Firemen narrowly prevented the spread of the flames to the Tucker building across the street from those burned. The total loss in the blaze will aggregate about $20,000 with insurance of approximately $8,000.

All the owners of buildings destroyed already are making arrangements to replace their structures with brick buildings.

No accidents occurred during the fire.

RIFLE SHOTS OF WORLD TO COMPETE

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 15.—Nearly a thousand sharpshooters from all parts of the United States and from many foreign countries are encamped here, ready to compete in the series of national shooting matches with rifle, pistol and revolver, which were formally opened at this range today and are scheduled to continue until September 9. The tournament, the largest ever held in this country and, perhaps anywhere in the world, began today with the contests of the National Rifle Association and of the Ohio Rifle Association, which will continue until and including Saturday of next week. On the following Monday, August 25, the National matches—team, individual and pistol—by authority of congress and the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, will begin to continue to the following Saturday. Next in order will be the nearly half a hundred international matches under the auspices of the Confederation Pan-American Shooting Union, L'Union Internationale des Federations et Associations de Tir (the International Union of Rifle Associations) and the National Rifle Association of America, which will continue until Tuesday, September 9, on which day the tournaments will close.

Seven foreign countries and the United States will line up in the international contests for world championships, and the United States Infantry, Cavalry, Navy and Marine Corps and the pick of the National Guards of a majority of the States of the Union will compete for the $3000 National trophy and the team championship of the United States. Canada will try to take back to Ottawa the historic Palma trophy, first shot for in 1876, which the United States team in 1907 won at Ottawa by the world's score of 1712, and which another United States team, selected at Seagirt last September, captured by another world record breaking score of 1720.

Among the foreign countries to take part in the international contests are Mexico, Cuba, Argentina, Switzerland, France, Sweden and a number of other countries. Cash and silver and bronze trophies of from $150 to $3000 in value, amounting in the aggregate about $50,000, make a prize list four times greater than at any shooting tourney ever held before in North America. The cash prizes alone in the international matches foot up more than $14,000. In addition to these general prizes there are many special prizes and trophies to be competed for. What promises to be the most interesting contest will be the international rifle shooting championship of the world, on a decimal ring target at 300 metres, using what is designated abroad as the "free rifle." This method of free-hand shooting with the hair-trigger, is comparatively new to American sharpshooters but is generally practiced by experts in European countries.

RETAIL MERCHANTS PERFECT ORGANIZATION

The Retail Merchants' Association perfected its organization Thursday evening by electing officers and appointing standing committees. It was decided to make it county wide in its scope and the official name adopted is Pontotoc County Merchants' Association.

R. F. Smith was elected president, E. C. Cuning, vice president and W. L. Reed treasurer.

The matter of employing a secretary was passed up for further consideration, it being the intention of the organization to exercise extreme care in picking the right man, since the success or failure of the organization.

The following committees were appointed: By-laws: M. C. Wilson, Robert Guest, L. T. Walters; Printing: E. S. Haraway; J. F. Jackson and Ed Gwin; Membership: L. R. Clark, — Logsdon, Ed Gwin.

Until further notice a meeting will be held every Thursday evening.

A. J. DEATON THANKS PUBLIC FOR LIBERAL PATRONAGE

To My Friends and Patrons:

I take this means of extending my heartiest thanks to you for the liberal patronage accorded the Ada Marble Works in times past. People are learning more and more the fact that they can get more satisfactory service at home than elsewhere, and the increasing volume of business I have enjoyed is evidence that my patrons are pleased with my work and are speaking a good word occasionally to their friends in my behalf, for which I am duly grateful.

I am constantly increasing my output of tomb stones and monuments, and when needing anything in my line all I ask is that you examine my stock and be convinced that you will get the best service at home.

Again thanking you for past favors and hoping for a continuation of same, I am very truly yours, 1st&w A. J. DEATON.

HARRISON HALL OVERCOME BY GAS IN WELL RESCUED IN NICK OF TIME.

Early this morning Harrison Hall came near losing his life from being overcome by damp gas while working in a well on the farm of W. N. Gray north of Homer school house. The men who went to his rescue had great difficulty in getting him out, he being unconscious and unable to help himself. Finally a young man volunteered to go down at the risk of his own life and tie a rope about the stricken man. When finally brought to the surface he was thought to be dead but a physician who had already been sent for, soon arrived and after two hours work restored him to consciousness. When last heard from he was doing reasonably well.

RESIDENCE AND BARN BURNED AT STONEWALL

Stonewall, Ok., Aug. 15.—Wednesday evening about 3 o'clock the cry of "fire" was heard. The men turned out promptly and made a run to the E. M. Correll place on West Main where it was found that the building was in a mass of flames, caused by the explosion of a gasoline iron.

The water was turned on but it was soon found that the men could not do effective work as there was not enough water in the tank and it was soon exhausted and for awhile it seemed that there were other houses which were going to catch fire and would have done so had not it been for the quick and effective work with buckets, however, there were three barns which caught fire and were destroyed. One was on the lot that the residence was on, one belonging to Willy Henegar and one belonging to Lem Gibson. The barns belonging to Will Henegar and Lem Gibson had considerable hay in them and what did not burn was practically ruined from the water.

The residence which burned was occupied by the new M. K. & T. agent, Holdstein, and very little was saved. So far as we have been able to learn there was no insurance carried on the property which burned and the estimated damage done would probably be $2,500 or $3,000.

Several compliments were passed on the work the men did, and under the conditions it seems that it was the best work done since the installation of the waterworks system

The WOMAN

A Novel by
Albert Payson Terhune

Founded on William C. de Mille's Play of the same name

Copyright 1913. The Bobbs-Merrill Co., by special arrangement with the DeMille Publishing Co.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Congressman Standish and the Woman, believing themselves in love, spend a trial week as man and wife in a hotel in northern New York under assumed names. The Woman awakens to the fact that she does not love Standish and calls their engagement off. Standish protests undying devotion.

CHAPTER II—Wanda Kelly, telephone girl at the Hotel Keswick, Washington, is loved by Tom Blake, son of the political boss of the house. He proposes marriage and is refused.

CHAPTER III—She gives as one of the reasons her determination to get revenge on Jim Blake for ruining her father, Congressman Frank E. Kelly. Congressman Standish, his agent, is fighting the Mullins bill, a measure in the interests of the railroads. The machine is seeking means to discredit Standish in the hope of pushing the bill through.

CHAPTER IV—Robertson, son-in-law of Jim Blake and the latter's candidate for speaker of the house, tries to win Standish over, and failing, threatens to dig into his past.

"Well," he added to Van Dyke, as he hung up the receiver and pushed the telephone back on the table-desk's flat surface. "This roll-call gives us another hour to breathe in."

"We'll need it. And more," said Van Dyke, returning to his reading.

"Sure you're making that strong enough, Van Dyke?" he asked. "Don't use the word 'utensil' when 'spade' will do just as well. Cut out any flowery stuff and bang away at the point."

"I have," replied Van Dyke, handing Blake the edited pages. "Look it over and see how it strikes you."

Blake took the manuscript and scanned its contents from beneath his drooped lids. As he read, a look of unqualified approval replaced the doubt on his face. He nodded emphatically, once or twice. In his interest he unconsciously muttered, half aloud,

"Standish, the arch reformer," he murmured. "A moralist dethroned—scandalous past of a house leader brought to light—disciple of purity in politics convicted of dissolute private life"—H'm! That's the stuff. It'll make 'em sit up, I guess."

"If we can use it," corrected Van Dyke. "As it stands, it represents nothing but three spoiled sheets of white paper."

"It'll represent one perfectly good insurgent chief split up the back before another hour's past," retorted Blake. "I'll have the Woman's name by that time."

"What is that stubborn little telephone girl holding out for, I wonder?"

"It's past me!" growled Blake. "If it was a man I could size up the game at a glance and I'd know just what move to make. Every man has always had his price. Except One. And we crucified Him. But with women it's different. You can't tell what a woman's going to do. For the mighty good reason that she doesn't know, herself. This Kelly girl's got me guessing. She let me think I could buy her dead easy. Then she played for time. And now she's thrown us down altogether and won't say a word."

"You've sent over to central for that duplicate list of all the numbers that were called up from the Keswick today? Let me look at them."

"They aren't here yet," replied Blake. "I only sent for them a few minutes ago. You see, I thought I could save a lot of time by getting the information, direct, from the girl herself."

"The girl!" echoed Van Dyke dismally. "We've already wasted too much time on her. Can't we get hold of Standish?"

"He'll be along pretty soon."

"You've sent for him? You're sure he'll come for your sending?"

"No," drawled Blake. "I didn't. And he wouldn't. But Gregg started a whisper in the house that a scandal will break before morning. And he threw a hint of the same sort to the newspaper boys."

"Oh, if we can publish this as it's written here," broke in Van Dyke, "we've got him! This story makes him out the lowest blackguard unhung."

"And," amended Blake with genuine self-congratulation, "there isn't a word in it that hasn't got some sort of foundation on fact. That's saying a whole lot for a campaign scandal. We've got facts—real facts. May be some of 'em are twisted around so that you'd have to look at 'em twice before recognizing their dear familiar faces. But they're facts, just the same."

"And they're useless," grumbled Van Dyke, "just because the one fact we've haven't got."

"You mean the Woman?"

"The Woman's name. We can't get any one to believe a word of the story without that. What time is it? Oh, I didn't notice the clock. The time's getting short—dangerously short. If we want to get this story in any of tomorrow's papers we must have her name mighty quick. As it is, I'm afraid it'll be too late for anything but the last editions of the morning paper. What did the Associated Press people say, when you?"

"Jennings promised to hold a wire till the last minute. Better take the story around to him and tell him to have it ready. He understands. But be sure to tell him not to let it go till I give the word. A false move just now would be a boomerang that we couldn't stand. Come back as soon as you can. We need you."

Van Dyke, pocketing the typewritten sheets, departed on his mission; almost colliding at the door with Tom Blake, who was coming in.

"Hello, dad!" haled Tom. "I just dropped in on the way to the club to say 'howdy' to Grace. Where is she? Turned in?"

"No. Hasn't even got in. The train's hours late. Washout on the road somewhere. Mark telephoned up from the station. He's gone back there. They ought to be here any time now. Want to wait?"

"I'm sleepy!" yawned Tom. "Gee, but I wish Grace would show up!"

"So does Mark," answered Blake. Then, after a moment, a chuckle of genuine amusement startled his son.

"What's the joke?" asked Tom. "Did I miss it?"

"Yes, you missed it, all right. Both you and Grace always miss it. But I never do. I was just thinking—my little Grace—my kid—keeping the former governor of New York cooling his heels in a drafty railroad station. And, forty years ago, her father was a barefoot kid with one suspender, pan-handling kind-hearted old folks in the street with dying-mother stories and getting nickels from 'em. And even as lately as twenty-two years ago, what was I but a Chicago city clerk making an honest living by keeping my eyes shut and my palm open?"

"Dad," complained Tom, "I can't make you out! You always seem to take a savage delight in rubbing in the fact that everything we've got we owe to graft."

"Well," asked Blake, puzzled, "don't we? If we don't owe it to graft, what do we owe it to, I'd like to know?"

"To change the subject, dad," broke in Tom, "I've been making some plans."

"Have, hey?" queried Blake as though listening to the prattle of a somewhat backward child of six. "Such as what, for instance?"

"Well," answered Tom, trying not to show his irritation at Blake's tone. "I—the fact is—I want to get married."

"The blazes you do! Is that a boast or a confession?"

"I don't quite understand you," said Tom stiffly.

"I mean," began his father, "I mean—oh, never mind all that. Who's the girl?"

"Before I tell you," evaded Tom, "I'd like to get your views on the proposition in general."

"In general?" repeated Blake. "Son, marriage is never a proposition in general! Because every woman is an exception that proves no rule. You can't classify 'em any more than you can classify a nest of hornets that you happen to step into. Hell's full of women. So's Heaven, I guess. But neither class got to either place by following any 'proposition in general.' Tell me," he demanded, his philosophical mood changing in a flash to one of almost savage intentness, "is this girl the sort who can help you in getting where I want to put you?"

"How can I tell? You've never told me just where you intended to put me."

"Then I'll tell you now. There's no real need in your sailing any farther under sealed orders. I've made you a pretty fair lawyer. You'll have one more term as assistant district attorney. Then one as district attorney. After that a term or two in the cabinet—just to get the run of things."

"There's only one thing left," said Tom, almost in awe, as his father hesitated.

"Yes?" replied Blake grimly. "Well, maybe that won't be left when we get through. Now you can see why the girl must be of good family and have social position and breeding and all that kind of thing. Those are the things I'm shy on. And my children must make it up for me. This girl you want to marry—can she help you? Can you take her with you—right up to the White House?"

"I don't know," returned Tom.

"You see, I've never thought of her as a political asset. Happiness means a good deal more to me than position. I've already told her so. I—"

"Told her so? Then—then, you've asked her to marry you?"

"She's refused me—so far."

"Well!" grinned Blake, vastly relieved. "That's far enough, I guess. Don't go overplaying your luck."

"I'm going to stick at it till I win out!" declared Tom. "And I'm—"

"No, no! Don't do a crazy thing like that, son," pleaded Blake. "Take your medicine like a man. Don't keep on pestering the poor girl. By the way, you haven't told me who she is."

"She's—" faltered Tom; then, taking the plunge, he blurted out: "she's Miss Kelly."

"Kelly?" repeated Blake, mystified.

"Yes. Wanda Kelly, the phone operator downstairs."

"What?" exploded Blake.

Then he collapsed in the nearest chair and stared in blank helplessness at his son.

"Well," demanded Tom, instantly on the defensive.

"It's—it's a bum joke," growled Blake. "Maybe it'd go better with the banjo. Stop guyin' me, boy, and tell me who the girl really is."

"I told you," repeated Tim. "She is Wanda Kelly."

There was a dead pause. Blake at last broke it.

"There's about forty-five million
